I. FEMA EFSP FUNDING HISTORY

Phase CARES Request	$
Phase 36 Received	$ 15,000
Phase 35 Received	$

Note: FEMA funds are intended to be used to supplement or expand existing programs and services.

Describe how the organization intends to use these funds. Will the money requested in this proposal be used to support a service or program that was supported by FEMA funds in the past? If yes, describe below how services have been or will be expanded or supplemented.

Phase CARES funding will be used for the period of July 1, 2020 to June 30, 2021 in support of Sister Jose’s meal and overnight shelter programs for women experiencing homelessness in our community. In response to COVID-19, SJWC is adjusting its programs to accommodate disease transmission prevention while providing safe shelter and nutritious meals to the most vulnerable chronically homeless women who have no other gender-specific programs to use. We serve the neediest and most- at-risk women in our community who have been left behind. In this 12-month period, SJWC projects that 9000 shelter nights will be provided and 27,000 meals (breakfast and dinner) will be served. Lunch sacks provided by Caridad Community Kitchen are not included in this count or proposal.

IV. NARRATIVE

Please answer the following questions. Limit answers to the space provided.

1. Give a brief explanation of your organization's ability to coordinate service delivery with other human service providers. Specifically identify the networks, coalitions and collaborative arrangements that your agency maintains.

Sister Jose Women’s Center (SJWC) offers itself as a hub for homeless service providers to reach out to women experiencing homelessness in the Tucson area. It collaborates with complementary agencies that offer core services, including housing, DES, behavioral and medical health assistance, and employment. Free office space is provided to any agency that becomes a scheduled partner in our daytime program. In 2019, agencies included Blake Easterseals, Old Pueblo Community Services (OPCS), PPEP Integrated Care, El Rio Health, Amerigroup, Pima County Library, Pima Animal Care Center (PACC), La Frontera, and Catholic Community Services (CCS). SJWC administrators provide case management to women and guide women seeking employment to an appropriate employment service, such as, DK Associates, Sullivan-Jackson Employment Center, and AZ@Work. Women who are actively engaged with employment services are a priority in the overnight program; SJWC recognizes the absolute necessity of stable and safe overnights for women seeking employment. SJWC enter women into the Homeless Management Information System (HMIS) as part of the TPCH Continuum of Care (CoC). It also participates in the City of Tucson’s Dignity in Work program in collaboration with OPCS, CCS, and PACC. The Southwest Institute for Research on Women (SIROW) has been a longtime collaborative partner. Together we completed an intensive Community Assessment which became a white paper on women and homelessness, developed the CREATE Program which has been a successful empowerment program, and developed instruments for program evaluation. Caridad Community Kitchen, the Food Bank of S. Arizona, the Midwest Food Bank, and the Community Food Bank Food Resource Program have all been vital support of the meal services provided at SJWC by helping reduce the cost of food prepared for the day and overnight programs.

SJWC has a close relationship with Tucson's faith community, civic organizations, and some locally owned businesses. The generosity of the Tucson community has allowed SJWC to own its property and building debt-free.

2. Describe any changes in the magnitude of the current need and/or service demand experienced since January 27, 2020 as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic and subsequent closures, (for example, number of requests or types of clients).

Since January 27, 2020, SJWC has closely monitored the COVID-19 crisis and has adapted its programs accordingly. In mid-March the overnight program stopped accepting new participants and isolated 36 women. In mid-May, a slow release process was started to carefully integrate women back into the community following strict CDC protocols. The day program, which was serving up to 125 women daily, pivoted to a drop-by door program in which 35 to 50 individuals come by daily for lunch, canned goods for dinner, fruit, cheese, hard-boiled eggs, and snacks. Other offerings include clothing, personal hygiene, and some supplies for outdoor living. SJWC recently started to offer showers and laundry service to unsheltered women, again following strict CDC protocols. The CREATE Program is being adapted so that it can serve more women who struggle with serious challenges. SJWC is seeing many long-term chronically homeless individuals (it is serving both women and men at the door for now) who are reluctant to be part of the hotel rooms or homeless program. Included in this group are the seriously mentally ill, women controlled by their partners and not allowed to seek services, and those who are so acclimated to homelessness that it is all they expect. THE SJWC administrative team and BOD are planning for the upcoming fiscal year knowing that business as usual is no longer a safe or realistic option. SJWC relies on volunteers to operate all aspects of its programs but only 10% are willing to serve during the pandemic, many have resigned permanently. SJWC is not budgeted to replace vital volunteer labor with paid workers. It has applied for funding to re-purpose space for social distancing, medical isolation, and safety and hopes to start on construction July 2020. When the funding for hotel rooms for homeless persons ends, SJWC expects a huge increase in demand for its day and overnight services. Rising unemployment and business closures will increase the number of evictions, especially when the moratorium on evictions is lifted in July. The short- and long-term effects of COVID-19 on the extremely poor in our area will be profound, as the most vulnerable always suffer the greatest harm.

3. Give a brief explanation of how your service(s) will be addressing a gap in existing services available to community members impacted by the pandemic.

SJWC is the gateway from the streets, alleys, and arroyos for Tucson's most vulnerable women, including women of color, LGBTQ, the elderly, mentally ill, medically disabled, and chronically abused. It fills the gap between street survival and housing stability. Unsheltered homeless women can be categorized by needs; some are temporarily homeless and need short-term assistance, some are the "hidden homeless" who find temporary shelter by couch-surfing, motel stays, living in their cars, etc.; and others are the chronically homeless who experience episodic housing or acclimate completely to unsheltered life and expect nothing more for themselves. SJWC has a deep dedication to the last group, those women who have the least, and it anticipates that this group will need its services more than ever. It will provide for women's survival needs, restore basic human dignity with hot showers, clean clothes, healthy meals, and a compassionate community. The hidden homeless will benefit from SJWC's respite services and will be more likely to complete on-site intakes and enrollment in benefits with trusted staff members with whom a relationship has begun. This environment of belonging and personal safety allows women to relax their guard and make progress. The CREATE Program will offer short workshops, computer assistance for benefit enrollment, and assertive case management for setting simple goals and step-by-step progress towards a more sustainable and less vulnerable life.

Another gap is the reluctance of outside service providers to return to the center to meet in-person with women. Some of our collaborating partners have said that they will serve remotely at least until January 2021. For the homeless, remote services are extremely difficult because they have little access to the internet or technology, keeping appointments are challenging for those who do not keep time by the hour or even the day, and the impersonality of remote contact can trigger paranoia and distrust. SJWC has also found that the experience and dedication of outside case managers sent to do outreach is lacking and piecemeal. Many women we serve come daily so keeping in contact is not as problematic as it is for outside agencies and the relationships built here are more stable. To better serve our clients and increase the likelihood that they will enter the Continuum of Care to become stable and housed, SJWC must hire a program dedicated case manager to move women daily survival to housing stable.

Lastly, there is a huge gap regarding our volunteer pool, most of whom are elderly and medically vulnerable to COVID. Less than 10% reported to the center in May, and only a few more have expressed willingness to return before testing and tracing become standard practice in Arizona. To fill this gap, SJWC must hire 4.2 FTE to monitor the overnight program if it is to operate at all. The extreme need of unsheltered visitors requires that it add a full-time case manager to work with SJWC administrators who perform this function presently. The risks and needs of chronically homeless women who have not been able to access the programs offered during this crisis are far greater and more difficult to assist than previously. The added trauma of COVID has made these women more vulnerable and at-risk. The higher the risk, the greater the needs and challenges.

4. Explain any anticipated funding cuts. Identify the funding source anticipated to be reduced and describe any alternative funding sources sought by the organization to make up for these cutbacks.

The coronavirus pandemic is expected to have a greater negative impact on nonprofits than the Great Recession in 2008 when charitable giving dropped 7% in 2008 and 6.2% in 2009. According to Marketwatch, a 7% drop can be fatal for a nonprofit that runs a tight budget and has little cushion. No one knows the extent of economic damage resulting from COVID-19 but with 40 million unemployed and untold business failures in the future, SJWC anticipates that people who usually donate will take a defensive position and wait to see if donating is prudent. Another huge casualty of the pandemic is volunteering. According to Fidelity Charitable, "Nearly half (47 percent) of recent volunteers believe the amount of time they volunteer will decrease or stop entirely because of the pandemic. Older volunteers say that their volunteering will decrease (61 percent of Silent Generation and 57 percent of Baby Boomers)" SJWC relies heavily on volunteer hours for operations and leveraging grants with in-kind donations of hours volunteered. Less than 10% of its volunteers feel able to serve at this point with many saying they will never return. It is critical that SJWC be able to hire employees to serve in the capacities once served by its team of 260 volunteers! Social distancing threatens the fund-raising events that excite donors and bring in a reliable cash flow. SJWC has a fall event that typically raises $40,000; that event is uncertain due to COVID-19. SJWC has recently applied for COVID funding through Pima County ZOOM Grants for programs and facilities. It recently was awarded a grant from AZ Complete Health, The Community Foundation of S. AZ, and the Community Foundation (Phoenix). The Arizona State Tax credit continues to be a successful source for private donations.

5. Define the geographical area to be served with requested FEMA EFSP CARES funds.

SJWC is located south of Tucson's downtown area. Women come to its center from all areas in the city limits and outside unincorporated areas. It sees women from the nearby reservations, and towns in Southern Arizona, like Sierra Vista and Green Valley. SJWC does not limit its services to any geographic region.

6. Briefly describe the target population for each service for which you are requesting FEMA EFSP CARES funds.

SJWC is a low barrier center for all women experiencing homelessness or extreme poverty. All programs are available to all women. It serves homeless women between the ages of 18 and end-of-life. In the first quarter of 2020:

- 43% were chronically homeless
- 51% had serious mental illness
- 38% had a medical disability and 23% had a physical disability
- 56% were survivors of domestic violence and 20% were fleeing their abuser
- 23% Hispanic, 59% White (including Hispanic), 13% African American/Black, 10% multi-racial, 7% Native American, 25 each for Asian and Pacific Islander
- 13% ages 62 or over

Data is self-reported and may account for lower actual numbers for issues that might be painful or embarrassing. SJWC has found that overtime more is revealed as women come to feel safe and valued.

7. Please discuss how your program collaborates with other local pandemic response efforts.

SJWC works together with other agencies through the personal relationships that develop between individuals committed to human services and the dignity of all people. Its stable staff allows it to grow and maintain relationships that last for many years and form an informal collaboration between dedicated professionals and their agencies. During the pandemic, its collaborations with Primavera, Catholic Community Services, and Old Pueblo Community Services has led to the safe housing of women in hotels, transitional living, and rapid rehousing. El Rio Health has maintained a presence at the center and provides homeless women with quick and easy access to prescription medications, emergency assessment, and COVID-19 testing. One of its private business donors has partnered with a local restaurant to provide 300 lunch sack weekly since mid-March. More formal collaboration occurs in weekly ZOOM meeting through TPCH that connects organizations, public agencies, and state departments. SIROW and the Community Foundation of S.AZ have provided its expertise in consultations and group workshops. SJWC practices trauma-informed care using a gentle hand-off from its staff to the appropriate agency which recognizes the deep level of over-lapping traumas and fear experienced by homeless women. SJWC works with the TPCH Continuum of Care, submits guest data into the HMIS system and assesses guests for the VI-SPDAT. SJWC staff has refocused its efforts to provide assertive and enhance case management to women due to the extreme challenges they face and also because outside agencies are not available or allowed to do face-to-face work with clients. We know that building trust and gentle persistence is key to success in this work. Collaboration is primarily through phone contact between SJWC staff and its personal contact in other agencies. Relationships build success.
