MEMORANDUM

Date: April 4, 2022

To: The Honorable Chair and Members
Pima County Board of Supervisors

From: Jan Leshner
Acting County Administrator

Re: Additional Materials Board of Supervisors April 5, 2022 Addendum Item 6 –
Differential Water Rate Lawsuit Update

I had been waiting for substantive progress on this case to share an update with you. However, in the absence of such, I am instead providing a recap of the lawsuit to date and next steps.

Per your direction, Snell and Wilmer L.L.P. filed a lawsuit in Pima County Superior Court December 17, 2021 on behalf of the County regarding the City of Tucson's adoption of a differential water rate in select unincorporated areas. The actions leading to the lawsuit were summarized in County Administrator Huckelberry's November 22, 2021 review of chronology and options.

As I communicated to you on December 17, 2021, the Complaint for Declaratory and Injunctive Relief was filed that day in Pima County Superior Court primarily based on:

- Violation of Arizona Revised Statutes requiring that rates be "just and reasonable";
- Common law rate discrimination by not treating similarly situated customers equally;
- Violation of the 14th Amendment of the United States Constitution and Article II, Section 13 of the Arizona Constitution, providing for equal protection under the law and protection against race-based discrimination; and
- Violation of Article IV, Part 2, Section 19 of the Arizona Constitution prohibiting governments from enacting "special laws."

On February 2, 2022, I communicated to you that the City of Tucson retained the firm of Gust Rosenfeld to represent the City in this litigation and filed a motion of change of venue to move the case to Maricopa County, as per their statutory right. On January 18, 2022, the motion to move the case to Maricopa County was approved.

On February 16, 2022, I informed you that Judge Randall Warner had been assigned to the case and provided you with the City of Tucson February 14 answer to our complaint. Also included in that communication was their Motion to Compel Arbitration, arguing that the 2000 County/City Intergovernmental Agreement supplementing the 1979 Agreement, provides for the current dispute to be resolved through arbitration in lieu of proceeding with the case in Superior Court.

The Honorable Chair and Members, Pima County Board of Supervisors
Re: Additional Materials Board of Supervisors April 5, 2022 Addendum Item 6 –
Differential Water Rate Lawsuit Update

April 4, 2022

On March 3, 2022, our attorneys filed the attached Response to Motion to Compel Arbitration. The Response argued that the arbitration clause is not applicable because the current dispute does not “arise under” either the 1979 IGA or the 2000 Supplemental IGA—neither of which concern water rate setting. The Response also argued that forcing the case into arbitration would violate public policy.

On March 11, City attorneys filed the attached Reply to Response to Motion to Compel Arbitration, requesting the Court set a case status conference to start the discovery process. That conference occurred on March 29 and resulted in Judge Warner scheduling the hearing on the motion to compel arbitration for April 7 I will update you following that meeting.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

15 IN AND FOR THE COUNTY OF MARICOPA

16 PIMA COUNTY, a body politic in the State
17 of Arizona,

No. CV2022-001141

18 Plaintiff,

19 v.

RESPONSE TO MOTION TO COMPEL ARBITRATION

20 CITY OF TUCSON, a municipal corporation of the State of Arizona,
21 REGINA ROMERO, in her official capacity as the Mayor of Tucson, LANE
22 SANTA CRUZ, in her official capacity as Tucson City Councilmember, PAUL
23 CUNNINGHAM, in his official capacity as Tucson City Councilmember, KEVIN
24 DAHL, in his official capacity as Tucson
City Councilmember, NIKKI LEE, in her
25 official capacity as Tucson City
Councilmember, RICHARD FIMBRES, in
26 his official capacity as Tucson City
Councilmember, STEVE KOZACHIK, in
27 his official capacity as Tucson City
Councilmember, and MICHAEL
28 ORTEGA, in his official capacity as

1 Tucson City Manager,
2 Defendants.

4 Plaintiff Pima County (“Pima” or “County”) responds in opposition to Defendants
5 City of Tucson, Regina Romero, Lane Santa Cruz, Paul Cunningham, Kevin Dahl, Nikki
6 Lee, Richard Fimbres, Steve Kozachik, and Michael Ortega (collectively, “Tucson” or 7 “City”)’s Motion to Compel Arbitration (“Motion”).

8 In this action, Pima challenges Tucson City Ordinance No. 11881 on the grounds
9 that the Ordinance discriminates against certain Tucson Water Department (“Tucson
10 Water”) customers living in unincorporated areas. Pima does not allege that Ordinance No.
11 11881 violates any provision, or duty created by, the 1979 “Sewer Merger
12 Intergovernmental Agreement” (the “1979 IGA”) or the “Supplemental Intergovernmental 13 Agreement Relating to Effluent” (the “2000 Supplemental IGA”) (collectively, the “IGAs”)
14 entered into between the County and the City. Nor would any such allegation make logical 15 sense. The IGAs only concern the County’s administration of the region’s wastewater 16 management systems, not the City’s management of the region’s water.

17 Still, Defendants argue that this important case, which impacts thousands of Pima
18 County residents, must be forced into private arbitration because in the 2000 Supplemental 19 IGA the County and the City agreed to arbitrate all disputes “arising under” the 2000
20 Supplemental IGA or the 1979 IGA. But Pima’s claims do not “arise under” the IGAs:
21 “resolution” of this case does not “require[] a reference to or construction of some portion
22 of the [IGAs]” Dusold v. Porta-John Corp., 167 Ariz. 358, 362 (App. 1990). Instead, Pima’s
23 claims all allege that Ordinance No. 11881 violates legal duties “generally owed to others
24 besides the contracting parties”—namely, A.R.S. § 9-511.01, the common law, the equal
25 protection provisions in the U.S. and Arizona Constitutions, and the Arizona Constitution’s
26 prohibition on “special laws.” See id. at 363. The Arizona Court of Appeals has explained
27 that arbitration clauses covering disputes “arising under” a contract do not reach these types
28 of claims. Id. at 362-363.

1 It is irrelevant that Pima’s Complaint cites to the IGAs. Those citations were 2 included largely for historical reference and to help show that Tucson is a regional water
3 supplier. While it is certainly true that Tucson’s role as regional water supplier supports
4 Pima’s legal claims, Pima’s causes of action related to the City’s discriminatory and 5 unconstitutional acts exist even if the County and the City had never entered into the IGAs.

6 Even setting these fatal defects aside, compelling arbitration of Pima’s claims that 7 Ordinance No. 11881 discriminates on the basis of race and against similarly situated 8 customers—in violation of, among other things, the Arizona and U.S. Constitutions—based 9 on two, decades old, agreements, which primarily concern the County’s takeover of 10 wastewater management systems from the City, would be patently absurd and contrary to 11 public policy. The City’s theory that it can hide behind highly technical intergovernmental 12 agreements dealing with wastewater to avoid judicial scrutiny of its severely discriminatory
13 and unconstitutional differential water rate scheme is not supported by the 1979 IGA, 2000
14 Supplemental IGA, or applicable law.

15 For all these reasons, the Motion should be denied.

16 ARGUMENT

17 “Although it is commonly said that the law favors arbitration, it is more accurate to 18 say that the law favors arbitration of disputes that the parties have agreed to arbitrate.” S.
19 Cal. Edison Co. v. Peabody W. Coal Co., 194 Ariz. 47, 51, ¶ 11 (1999) (emphasis added);
20 see also E.E.O.C. v. Waffle House, Inc., 534 U.S. 279, 294 (2002) (“[W]e do not override 21 the clear intent of the parties. . . simply because the policy favoring arbitration is 22 implicated.”). Moreover, the general policy favoring arbitration has little force where, as 23 here, the entire dispute focuses on constitutional, common law, and statutory issues: while 24 arbitrators have “specialized competence” in contractual matters, “[t]his expertise does not 25 extend to . . . statutory and constitutional issues.” See Horne v. New England Patriots
26 Football Club, Inc., 489 F.Supp. 465, 470 (D. Mass. 1980); see also Dusold, 167 Ariz. at 27 362 (noting that arbiters lack expertise in personal injury claims).

28 Here, in the 2000 Supplemental IGA the parties agreed to arbitrate “any dispute

1 arising under” the 2000 Supplemental IGA or the 1979 IGA. [Compl. Ex. E at § 14.1
2 (emphasis added).] The County’s statutory, common law, and constitutional claims do not
3 “aris[e] under” the 1979 IGA or the 2000 Supplemental IGA. The Motion should be denied.

4 I. The 1979 IGA and the 2000 Supplemental IGA Do Not Govern Tucson Water
5 Rates.

6 As a preliminary matter, the City’s Motion (at 2-3) distorts the role that the 1979
7 IGA and the 2000 Supplemental IGA play in this dispute. While the City correctly
8 acknowledges (at 2) that “Pima County brought this action to challenge a Tucson City
9 ordinance that effects differential water rate charges for certain Tucson Water Department
10 customers located outside of City limits,” it fails to note that Pima County has not alleged 11 that Ordinance No. 11881 violated, or in any way impacted, the 1979 IGA or 2000
12 Supplemental IGA. [See Compl. at ¶¶ 151-211 (setting forth causes of action, all of which 13 are brought against Ordinance No. 11881 alone).] Not even the City argues that the IGAs
14 and Ordinance No. 11881 are somehow connected—the best the City can do is state that 15 certain allegations in the Complaint somehow “flow” from the IGAs. [Motion at 2.]

16 Nevertheless, and to be clear, the 1979 IGA and the 2000 Supplemental IGA have 17 essentially nothing to do with the rates that Tucson Water can charge (with the possible
18 exception that these agreements help show that Tucson Water customers in unincorporated 19 areas actually subsidize the handling for wastewater services, therefore undermining the 20 City’s position that unincorporated customers “cost more” than in-city customers see 21 Compl. at ¶¶ 98-100). Rather, those agreements concern the County’s control of the region’s 22 wastewater facilities.

23 This is explained in Article 1 of the 1979 IGA, which states that the agreement’s 24 purpose was to provide “guidelines for the orderly and timely transfer of the City of 25 Tucson’s sewerage system . . . to Pima County.” [Compl. Ex. D at 3 (emphasis added).]
26 The 1979 IGA therefore has Articles related to, among other things: “Treated and 27 Reclaimed Water (Effluent)” (Article III); “Assumption of Sewer System Financing and 28 Liabilities” (Article IV); constructing wastewater storage facilities (Article V); and

1 transferring City sewer department employees to the County (Article IX). [Id. at 5-13, 18-
2 21.]

3 The 2000 Supplemental IGA, for its part, was only intended to “supplement the 1979
4 IGA.” [Compl. Ex. E at § 1.6.] Some of these “supplements” include provisions granting 5 the County greater control over wastewater effluent generated in non-metropolitan areas
6 (Section 4); creating a pool of wastewater effluent for certain riparian projects (Section 5); 7 and providing provisions for coordinating wastewater treatment between the City and 8 County (Section 10)—among other things. [Id. at §§ 4.1-4.2, 5.1-5.1.4, 10.1-10.6.]

9 In short, the IGAs are included in the Complaint for background information. These 10 documents do not form the basis of any of the legal claims in the Complaint.

11 II. The Arbitration Clause Does Not Apply.

12 A. This Litigation Does Not “Arise Under” the IGAs, Under the Standard 13 Set Forth in *Dusold v. Porta-John Corp.

14 The relevant portion of the 2000 Supplemental IGA’s arbitration clause states:

15 14.1. The following non-binding alternative dispute resolution 16 process shall be followed for any dispute arising under this Supplemental IGA or the 1979 IGA.

17 14.1.1 The City and the County shall meet and confer about the 18 issue or issues in an attempt to resolve the dispute. If there are 19 issues that cannot be resolved by City and County, each shall 20 appoint one arbitrator to a three party panel of arbitrators which 21 will decide the dispute. The appointment of the two arbitrators will occur within 30 days of the meeting referred to above.

22 [Id. at § 14.1 (emphasis added).]

23 In Dusold v. Porta-John Corp., 167 Ariz. 358 (App. 1990), the Arizona Court of 24 Appeals held that “in order for the dispute to be characterized as arising out of or related to 25 the subject matter of the contract, and thus subject to arbitration, it must, at the very least,
26 raise some issue the resolution of which requires a reference to or construction of some 27 portion of the contract itself.” 167 Ariz. at 362. The Court further explained that “[i]f the 28 contract places the parties in a unique relationship that creates new duties not otherwise

1 imposed by law, then a dispute regarding a breach of a contractually-imposed duty . . .
2 would be one arising from the contract terms and therefore subject to arbitration . . .” Id. at 3 363 (emphasis added). “If, on the other hand, the duty alleged to be breached is one imposed 4 by law in recognition of public policy and is generally owed to others besides the 5 contracting parties, then a dispute regarding such a breach is not one arising from the 6 contract. . . a contractually-imposed arbitration requirement like the one at issue here would 7 not apply to such a claim.” Id. (emphasis added).

8 The distinction between a claim arising out of a contract versus a claim arising out
9 of a duty generally owed to others is illustrated in Dusold. There, Dusold entered into a 10 Service Contract Agreement with Porta-John to service and clean portable toilets. Id. at 259.
11 The Service Contract Agreement contained a clause requiring arbitration for “any 12 controversy or claim arising out of, or relating to this agreement, or the breach thereof.” Id.
13 After several months, Dusold sued Porta-John alleging that the company had failed to warn
14 him of the toxic nature of the cleaning chemicals and failed to provide him with adequate 15 instructions for their use. Id. The Court of Appeals held that because Porta-John’s duties to 16 warn Dusold about the toxic nature of the chemicals were “owed to him by Porta-John even 17 if he were a contractual stranger,” those claims were not subject to arbitration. Id. at 363.

18 Notably, the arbitration clause in Dusold was actually broader than the arbitration 19 clause at issue here, because it required arbitration of any dispute “arising out of, or relating 20 to” the services agreement. See Sun Valley Ranch 308 Ltd. P’ship ex rel. Englewood 21 Properties, Inc. v. Robson, 231 Ariz. 287, 292 ¶ 14 (App. 2012) (distinguishing between 22 “arising under” and “related to” contractual language); see also Mediterranean Enter., Inc.
23 v. Ssangyong Corp., 708 F.2d 1458, 1464 (9th Cir. 1983) (“The phrase ‘arising under’ has 24 been called ‘relatively narrow as arbitration clauses go’” (citation omitted)); U.S. ex rel.
25 Dorsa Miraca Life Sciences, Inc., No. 3:13-CV-01025, 2019 WL 13130022, at *3 (M.D.
26 Tenn. Dec. 11, 2019) (“The arbitration provision in the Employment Agreement is narrower
27 than those in cases addressing broadly-worded arbitration clauses because it explicitly limits
28 the scope of the clause to the disputes arising ‘under the terms of this agreement’ and does

1 not include claims ‘related’ to the agreement . . .”). Yet, the Court still determined that
2 Dusold’s tort claims, which were far more closely related to Service Contract Agreement
3 than the County’s claims are to the IGAs here, were not subject to arbitration. Dusold, 167
4 Ariz. at 363.

5 Applying Dusold, it becomes clear that the arbitration clause in the 2000
6 Supplemental IGA does not apply here. In this case, the “issues” that require “resolution”
7 are as follows:

- 8 • Count I (A.R.S. § 9-511.01): (a) whether Tucson is a “municipality engaged in a 9 domestic water or wastewater business” and, if so (b) whether Ordinance No. 11881
10 imposes rates that are not “just and reasonable.” A.R.S. § 9-511.01(A), (D).
- 11 • Count II (Common Law Rate Discrimination): whether Ordinance No. 11881 12 charges discriminatory rates between similarly situated customers. Town of 13 Wickenburg v. Sabin, 68 Ariz. 75, 77-78 (1948).
- 14 • Count III (Equal Protection – Similarly Situated Customers): whether Ordinance
15 No. 11881: (a) discriminates between; (b) similarly situated Tucson Water 16 customers; (c) in a manner that is not rationally related to a legitimate governmental 17 interest. Big D. Const. Corp. v. Court of Appeals, 163 Ariz. 560, 566 (1990).
- 18 • Count IV (Equal Protection – Race Based Discrimination): whether Ordinance
19 No. 11881: (a) discriminates between; (b) similarly situated Tucson Water customers
20 on the basis of race; (c) in a manner that is not necessary to serve a compelling
21 government interest. Kenyon v. Hammer, 142 Ariz. 69, 83 (1984)
- 22 • Count V (Special Law): whether Ordinance No. 11881 fails one of the following 23 requirements: (a) it must have a rational relationship to a legitimate governmental 24 objective; (b) the classification made in Ordinance No. 11881 must be legitimate, 25 encompassing all members that are similarly situated, and (c) “the classification must 26 be elastic, allowing ‘other individuals or entities to come within’ and move out of 27 the class.” Gallardo v. State, 236 Ariz. 84, 88 ¶ 11 (2014) (citation omitted); State
28 Compensation Fund v. Symington, 174 Ariz. 188, 193 (1993).

1 Resolving these issues does not “require” referencing or construing the IGAs.
2 Dusold, 167 Ariz. at 362. For instance, Counts I-III and V require the County to establish,
3 at some level, that the City’s purported justifications for Ordinance No. 11881—
4 “rewarding” annexation, disproportionate financial risks between in-city and out-of-city
5 customers, environmental sustainability, cost of service and staying consistent with other 6 municipalities—are untethered to differential rates. The Complaint sets forward various 7 reasons why this is the case, all without citing the 1979 IGA or the 2000 Supplemental IGA,
8 including that: (1) incentivizing annexation is not a legitimate reason to impose differential
9 rates and, in any rate, differential rates will not in fact increase annexation [Compl. at ¶¶ 10 75-90]; (2) the County actually subsidizes in-City Tucson Water customers through, among 11 other things, Central Arizona Water Project taxes [Id. at ¶¶ 91-105]; (3) differential rates
12 based on jurisdiction, rather than consumption, do not increase water conservation [Id. at 13 ¶¶ 106-115]; (4) the City’s Cost of Service studies are fundamentally flawed [Id. at 116-
14 138]; (5) the fact that other municipalities charge differential rates does not justify 15 Ordinance No. 11881. [Id. at 139-142.]

16 Similarly, to show Counts II-IV, the County will establish that Tucson Water
17 customers exempted from differential rates (in-city customers, customers on Native 18 American tribe lands, and Tucson Unified School District campuses) are “similarly 19 situated” to customers not exempted (those living in unincorporated areas). E.g., Town of 20 Wickenburg, 68 Ariz. at 77-78; D. Constr. Corp., 163 Ariz. at 566; Gallardo, 236 Ariz. at 21 88 ¶ 11. While the 1979 IGA and the 2000 Supplemental IGA may be relevant background 22 to this inquiry, there are a myriad other ways to establish that the exempted and non-23 exempted customers are clearly “similarly situated.” For example, a legitimate cost-of-24 service study is proof enough. [See Compl. Ex. P (showing that exempted and non-25 exempted customers often live within 1,000 feet of each other).]

26 Further, each claim asserted by the County stems from legal duties “imposed by law”
27 that are “generally owed to others besides the contracting parties.” Dusold, 167 Ariz. at 363.
28 Counts I and II are brought under statutory and common law duties that apply to all

1 municipalities engaging in water utility services. A.R.S. § 9-511.01(A), (D); Town of
2 Wickenburg, 68 Ariz. at 77-78. Counts III-V alleges that Ordinance No. 11881 violate
3 provisions in the U.S. and Arizona Constitutions applicable to all government entities.
4 [Compl. at ¶¶ 172-211.] All of these duties would be owed by Tucson to Pima even if the 5 two parties were “contractual stranger[s].” Dusold, 162 Ariz. at 363.

6 At bottom, the County’s claims are independent of and would exist without the 1979
7 IGA and the 2000 Supplemental IGA. Given this set of circumstances, the County’s claims
8 do not “arise under” those agreements. See Dusold, 167 Ariz. at 363; Dorsa Miraca Life
9 Sciences, Inc. 2019 WL 13130022, at *3 (holding that plaintiff’s claim that he was retaliated
10 against for filing False Claims Act violation did not “arise from” an employment agreement 11 because the retaliation claim “would exist even without the contract”).

12 B. The City’s Argument that Some of the County’s Allegations “Flow”
13 From the IGAs is Incorrect and Irrelevant.

14 The City does not explain how this litigation “arises under” the IGAs—the Motion
15 does not cite Dusold at all. Rather, the City (at 2-3) contends that arbitration is required here 16 because (1) supposedly each of the County’s claims are “based, at least in part, on the non-17 regional nature of the differential water rates charged to customers in unincorporated and 18 incorporated areas”; and (2) the “County’s allegation that the City is the regional water
19 supplier flow[s] from” the IGAs. This argument fails for several reasons.

20 First, the City’s position improperly presumes that because the IGAs provide 21 factually relevant background to this dispute, the arbitration clause in the 2000
22 Supplemental IGA must be binding. As Dusold makes clear, however, the key question is 23 not whether a contract with an arbitration clause is relevant to a dispute—rather, Courts
24 look at whether the dispute “raise[s] some issue the resolution of which requires a reference 25 to or construction of some portion of the contract itself.” Dusold, 167 Ariz. at 362. As 26 explained above, it is not necessary to reference or construe the IGAs to resolve this dispute.

27 Second, the County’s legal claims are not “based on” the City’s role as a regional 28 water supplier. Instead, the County’s legal claims are “based on” the City’s enactment of

1 discriminatory and irrational differential water rates for certain Tucson Water customers
2 living in unincorporated areas, in violation of A.R.S. § 9-511.01, the common law, the equal
3 protection guarantees in Article II, Section 13 of the Arizona Constitution and the 14th
4 Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, and Article IV, Part 2, Section 19 of the Arizona
5 Constitution’s prohibition on special laws. The bottom-line is that the City cannot use water
6 rates to achieve other non-water policy goals, such as annexation by extortion. The reality
7 that the City serves as a regional water supplier, which is substantiated by the IGAs, does 8 not form the legal basis for any of these claims.

9 Third, even if the County’s legal claims did somehow rely on the City’s role as 10 regional water supplier (and they do not), it is not necessary to reference or construe any 11 portion of the IGAs to establish this fact. The City’s role as regional water supplier is 12 evidenced by a litany of other historical documents, including the City’s ordinance
13 establishing the now-defunct Metropolitan Utilities Management Agency and in statements
14 made by the City in a lawsuit against the County. [See Compl. at ¶¶ 26-27 (quoting a joint 15 policy statement released by the Tucson City Council and the Pima County Board of 16 Supervisors); 30; 34.] The City is wrong to conflate the IGAs with the general fact that 17 Tucson is the region’s water supplier.

18 III. Forcing this Case into Arbitration Would Violate Public Policy

19 The Motion should be denied for all the reasons stated above. However, even if the 20 arbitration clause in the 2000 Supplemental IGA was applicable, forcing this important case
21 into arbitration would be grossly contrary to public policy and absurd. See generally e.g.
22 Gulf Coast Indus. Workers Union v. Exxon Co., U.S.A., 991 F.2d 244, 248 (5th Cir. 1993)
23 (explaining general rule that courts may vacate arbitral awards that violate public policy).
24 In the Complaint, Pima alleges that Ordinance No. 11881 blatantly violates the equal 25 protection provisions in the U.S. and Arizona Constitutions—including by discriminating 26 on the basis of race—by arbitrarily and irrationally increasing water prices for select,
27 politically unfavored, residents living in unincorporated areas. [Compl. at ¶¶ 143-149, 172-
28 196.] It also alleges that Tucson is vindictively using its control of the city’s water supply

1 in order to force unincorporated customers to vote in favor of annexation. [Id. at ¶¶ 76-80.]
2 Compelling arbitration here based on decades old IGAs that govern the minutiae of the 3 County’s takeover of the City’s wastewater system is absurd and harmful to the public
4 policy, embedded in the U.S. and Arizona constitutions, common law, and statute, favoring 5 non-discrimination among similarly situated rate payers. This is especially true given that 6 the City does not even attempt to tie Pima County’s legal claims with the actual duties and 7 requirements set forth in the 1979 IGA and the 2000 Supplemental IGA. See S. Cal. Edison
8 Co., 194 Ariz. at 51, ¶ 11 (cautioning that arbitration should only be compelled to resolve
9 disputes the parties have “agreed to arbitrate”); see also Air Methods Corp. v. OPEIU, 737
10 F.ed 660, 665 (10th Cir. 2013) (holding that arbitrators do not have “unlimited” authority 11 to “dispense [their] own brand of industrial justice” and that therefore an arbitral award is 12 only legitimate as long as “it draws its essences from the [contract]” (citation omitted)).

13 In short, the City cannot hide behind private arbitration to avoid the transparency
14 inherent in judicial review of important public matters—especially not by referencing
15 inapplicable IGAs that were only included in the Complaint for historical background and 16 to help show that the City has assumed responsibility for providing water throughout the 17 region.

18 IV. Only Claims “Arising Under” the IGAs are Subject to Arbitration

19 Finally, and only as an alternative argument, in the event the Court determines that 20 some of the County’s claims do “arise under” the IGAs (and none of the County’s claims 21 arise under those agreements), only those claims are subject to arbitration.<sup>1</sup> See S. Cal.
22 Edison Co., 194 Ariz. at 51 ¶ 11; see also Est. of Decamacho ex rel. Guthrie v. La Solana 23 Care & Rehab, Inc., 234 Ariz. 18, 26 ¶ 33 (App. 2014) (forcing some, but not all, claims to 24 arbitration). This is especially true given that the arbitration clause in the 2000
25 Supplemental IGA only covers disputes “arising under” that agreement, rather than all 26

27 <sup>1</sup> The County does not dispute that if the arbitration clause in the 2000 Supplemental IGA
28 did apply in this case (and it does not), the County’s claims against the Mayor,
Councilmembers, and City Members would also be subject to arbitration under Sun Valley
Ranch 308 Ltd. P’ship ex rel. Englewood Props., Inc. v. Robson, 231 Ariz. 287 (App. 2012).

1 claims that “relate to” the IGAs. See Petition of Kinoshita & Co., 287 F.2d 951, 953 (2d
2 Cir. 1961) (“The agreement to arbitrate is limited to such matters as those just enumerated
3 when it refers to dispute or controversies ‘under’ or ‘arising out of’ the contract.”)

4 The City’s citation (at 5-6) to Sun Valley Ranch 308 Ltd. P’ship ex rel. Englewood
5 Props., Inc. v. Robson, 231 Ariz. 287 (App. 2012) for the proposition that all of the County’s
6 claims are subject to arbitration is misleading. Although the Court in that case ultimately 7 determined that every claim was subject to arbitration, it did so only after conducting a 8 claim-by-claim Dusold analysis. Robson, 231 Ariz.at 293-295 ¶¶ 18-31.

9 CONCLUSION

10 At bottom, this case simply does not “arise under” the IGAs. The City and the County
11 have never agreed to arbitrate the types of claims at issue in this case. Therefore, the Motion 12 should be denied.

REPLY TO RESPONSE TO MOTION TO COMPEL ARBITRATION

1 Memorandum of Points and Authorities

2 I. The arbitration clause applies.

3 A. Resolution of this case requires reference to the 1979 IGA.

4 The subject arbitration provision applies to “any dispute arising under this 5 Supplemental IGA or the 1979 IGA.” “[I]n order for the dispute to be characterized as 6 arising out of or related to the subject matter of the contract, and thus subject to 7 arbitration, it must, at the very least, raise some issue the resolution of which requires a 8 reference to or construction of some portion of the contract itself.” Dusold v. Porta-
9 John Corp., 167 Ariz. 358, 362 (App. 1990).

10 The County’s argument that resolution of this case does not require reference to 11 the IGAs cannot be squared with its own allegations. Its Complaint begins by alleging 12 that the City is a regional water supplier that has always and must continue to treat all 13 customers in the region equally:

14 While many municipal water utilities charge differential rates to 15 unincorporated customers, Tucson Water is unique. From the 1970’s 16 onward, Tucson Water has served as a regional—rather than municipal—17 water supplier. The City has always treated its customers equally, whether located in incorporated or unincorporated areas. The law requires it to continue treating those customers equally today.

18 (Complaint, ¶ 2; see also ¶ 139, “Tucson Water is not analogous to ‘other’
19 municipalities.”).

20 The County goes on to allege that “[t]he 1979 IGA ... formalized the prior 21 understanding that Tucson would be responsible for regional water services....”
22 (Complaint, ¶ 36.) Reference to the IGAs is necessary because that allegation is the 23 underpinning of the County claims and the City denies the allegation that the IGA
24 formalizes any such understanding. (Answer, ¶ 36.) And whatever portion of the IGA
25 the County relies on for its allegation may have to be construed.

1           Based on 1979 IGA, the County repeatedly alleges that the City is “a regional
2 water provider” or “regional water source.” (Complaint, ¶¶ 75, 91, 101, 140.)

3           Taking the next step, the County further alleges and prays that “because Tucson
4 Water is a regional water provider” its differential rate setting ordinance should be 5 declared “illegal and unenforceable”:

- 6           • “[B]ecause Tucson Water is a regional water provider it is inappropriate for 7 Tucson to attempt to advance its own interests – like ‘reward[ing]’
8 annexation or incorporation – in setting rates for Tucson Water.” (¶ 75, 9 emphasis in original.)
- 10          • “[B]ecause Tucson Water is a regional water provider it is inappropriate for 11 Tucson to attempt to advance its own interests – like reducing financial risk –
12 in setting rates for Tucson Water. (¶ 91, emphasis in original.)
- 13          • “[B]ecause Tucson Water is a regional water provider it is a ‘monopoly 14 service provider with captive customers.’” (¶ 101.)
- 15          • “Tucson Water serves as a regional water source, with a captive consumer 16 base.” (¶ 140, emphasis in original.) “Thus, while it may be appropriate for 17 ‘other’ municipalities to charge differing rates to unincorporated customers, it 18 is not appropriate here.” (¶ 141.)

19           All of the above-referenced emphatic allegations are incorporated in each of the 20 County’s five claims. (Id., ¶¶ 151, 160, 172, 186 and 198.) Each of those claims allege 21 and is based, at least in part, on the non-regional nature of the differential water rates 22 charged to customers in unincorporated and incorporated areas. Key allegations were 23 quoted in the City’s motion (at 2-3).

24           Therefore, whether “[t]he 1979 IGA ... formalized the prior understanding that 25 Tucson would be responsible for regional water services” is at issue. (¶ 36.)
26 Accordingly, reference must be made to it and some portion of it may have to be

1 construed. Consequently, the arbitration provisions of the 2000 Supplemental IGA 2 apply to this dispute.

3 The County cannot avoid its reliance on the 1979 IGA to support its allegation
4 that the City is a regional water provider by pointing to “a litany of other historical 5 documents.” (Response at 9.) The referenced 1974 “joint policy statement” expressed
6 a mutual “desire” for, inter alia, “regional and local water systems.” (Complaint, ¶ 26.)
7 The subsequently formed Metropolitan Utilities Management Agency (“M.U.M.”) was 8 dissolved in 1976. (Id., ¶¶ 28, 31.) And mere allegations in the City’s 1977 lawsuit are 9 not somehow binding today against the 1979 IGA that resolved that lawsuit and 10 “formalized” the settlement. (Id., ¶¶ 34, 36.) All of that is, as the County says, 11 “historical.” What matters today is the County’s allegation that the “[t]he 1979 IGA ...
12 formalized the prior understanding that Tucson would be responsible for regional water 13 services.” (¶ 36.)

14 B. The arbitration clause applies to claims other than for breach of 15 contract.

16 The County argues that the arbitration clause does not apply because its claims 17 are of the types that could be asserted by others who are not parties to the IGAs. The 18 County bases that argument on excerpts of language from Dusold that supported the 19 court of appeals’ reasoning that the arbitration clause in Dusold’s contract with Porta-
20 John did not apply to his personal injury claim:

21 This reasoning is supported by the analysis employed by Arizona
22 courts in differentiating tort claims “arising out of contract” from tort 23 claims that arise solely out of legal duties imposed by law, for the purpose
24 of awarding attorneys’ fees pursuant to A.R.S. § 12–341.01(A). (Citations 25 omitted.) If the contract places the parties in a unique relationship that 26 creates new duties not otherwise imposed by law, then a dispute regarding a breach of a contractually-imposed duty is one that arises from the contract. (Citation omitted.) Analogously, such a claim would be one arising from the contract terms and therefore subject to arbitration where

1 the contract required it. If, on the other hand, the duty alleged to be 2 breached is one imposed by law in recognition of public policy and is 3 generally owed to others besides the contracting parties, then a dispute 4 regarding such a breach is not one arising from the contract, but sounds in tort. Id. Therefore, a contractually-imposed arbitration requirement like the one at issue here would not apply to such a claim.

5 167 Ariz. at 363.

6 Such an analysis does not apply to this case because there is no claim of breach 7 of contract herein. Consequently, the analysis does not disqualify this case from 8 arbitration. It remains true under the primary Dusold reasoning that the arbitration 9 clause applies herein because resolution of the claims requires reference to and possibly 10 construction of the IGAs.

11 II. The scope of the arbitration clause is sufficiently broad.

12 The County makes much of the fact that the subject arbitration clause uses the 13 phrase “arising under” rather than “relating to” the IGAs. That distinction does not 14 make a difference because, as discussed above, resolution of this case will require 15 reference to and perhaps construction of the IGAs.

16 III. Arbitration will not violate public policy.

17 The City has not moved to compel arbitration in order to “avoid judicial 18 scrutiny” or “to hide behind private arbitration to avoid the transparency inherent in 19 judicial review of important public matters.” (Response at 2, 10.)

20 There is nothing in the arbitration provisions about privacy. (See Complaint, Ex.
21 E, Section XIV.)

22 Moreover, the decision of the arbitrators in this dispute between two public
23 bodies will be a public record subject to inspection. A.R.S. § 39-121 (“Public records
24 and other matters in the custody of any officer shall be open to inspection by any person 25 at all times during office hours.”).

1           And judicial review is not necessarily avoided because if either party “declines to 2 accept the decision of the arbitration panel it may initiate an action in the appropriate
3 court ... to obtain a judicial determination of the underlying dispute.” (Complaint, Ex.
4 E, Section XIV, § 14.2.)

5 IV. The arbitrators will be “skilled and experienced” in the claims.

6           The County argues that the policy favoring arbitration should be given little force 7 in this case because the nature of the claims are supposedly beyond the “specialized 8 competence” of the arbitrators. In addition to overplaying the generality of words in the 9 Horne v. New England Patriots Football Club and Dusold cases, the County ignores the 10 provision of the 2000 IGA that the “Arbitrators appointed to the arbitration panel shall 11 be skilled and experienced in the field or field pertaining to the dispute.” (Complaint, 12 Ex. E, Section XIV, § 14.1.2.)

13           The notions that arbitration is chosen only in contract disputes, Horne, 489
14 F.Supp. 465, 470 (D. Mass. 1980), and that arbitrators only have expertise in such 15 disputes, Dusold, 167 Ariz. at 362, deny the reality of arbitration’s increased usage
16 since those cases were decided thirty and forty-plus years ago. Now, arbitrators decide 17 all manner of disputes. E.g., Chang v. Siu, 234 Ariz. 442 (2014) (arbitration of property 18 dispute within dissolution of marriage action). And “common law duties and remedies 19 grounded in statutes” can be subject to arbitration. Sun Valley Ranch 308 Ltd. P’ship ex
20 rel. Englewood Props., Inc. v. Robson, 231 Ariz., 287, 293, ¶ 18 (App. 2012). Indeed, if 21 arbitrators lack expertise in personal injury claims, why are lawyers appointed as 22 arbitrators in personal injury cases pursuant to Rule 73 of Civil Procedure?

23 V. Conclusion.

24           As a matter of public policy, Arizona favors arbitration as a means of resolving 25 controversies when parties have agreed to do so. S. Cal. Edison Co. v. Peabody W.
26 Coal Co., 194 Ariz. 47, 51 (1999). Here, two equally sophisticated political

1 subdivisions of the State of Arizona, with billion-dollar budgets, selected arbitration as 2 the method to resolve any disputes “arising under” their IGAs, in other words, that 3 require reference to and/or construction of them, and to possibly avoid the costs of 4 litigation. This court should order the County to follow that method.
