

Tip#3: What do you Want Out of Your Exercise Program?

Adapted from UnitedHealthcare

What do you want out of your exercise program?

The answer to that question defines what kind of program will work best for you in the long run.

Ask yourself, "What do I want to accomplish?" Do you want to lose weight? Get in shape and stay in shape? Maybe you'd like to reduce some of the stress in your life. Or perhaps you're serious about improving your overall health or increasing your muscular strength.

The good news is that every one of those goals can be accomplished. Each one can be the start of a fun exercise program you can enjoy and from which you can benefit.

Is your goal weight control? Then start with a low-impact or non-impact aerobic activity and work up to at least 30 minutes almost every day. If your goal is strengthening your muscles, there are plenty of strength-conditioning programs that include the use of free weights, weight machines, exercise tubing or calisthenics.

If your goal is improved flexibility, you could try yoga or a simple stretching routine that covers all of your major muscle groups.

Where's the best place to exercise?

What's better, your home or a health club? Actually, one place isn't better than another. The choice really comes down to where you will be most comfortable and best able to accomplish your exercise goals. Here are some things to consider when you're making your decision.

Home Exercise Economics

Exercising at home can be more economical than exercising at a health club. Invest in a good pair of running or walking shoes, some adjustable dumbbells and an exercise mat, and you're ready to go. For some people, the best part of home exercise is the privacy.

If you're the kind of person who can stick with an exercise program alone at home, that's your answer. But if you do better with the stimulation of others, or if you enjoy being with a group of people who share your interests, consider a full-service club.

Tip#3: What do you Want Out of Your Exercise Program?

Adapted from UnitedHealthcare

More Equipment and Professional Guidance at a Club

For some people, a health or fitness club works a lot better than home. Clubs have a variety of exercise options, professional fitness instructors to keep you working in the right direction and other people who share a common interest. One of the nice things about a club is that you can work it into your schedule. Go early in the morning before work or stop off on your way home.

The only drawback could be the cost of health club membership. You'll have to weigh the expense with what you can afford and what you want to accomplish. Thankfully, Pima County Employee Wellness has partnered with several fitness facilities within Tucson to offer you affordable memberships. Please visit the Wellness Discounts & Services webpage to learn more.

One More Option: A Workday Routine

There is still another direction you can go, and that's to get together with coworkers during lunch to walk or jog. Many people have a good chance of sticking with a regularly scheduled lunchtime exercise program. You just might be one of them.

This Week's Challenge

Recruit a friend or co-worker to join you in your efforts to get more physically active.

Walking is one the easiest actions you can take to improve your health. Join other Pima County employees to walk at or near your worksite on a regular basis! Plus, you can earn rewards every time you participate in at least 15 walks. Learn more by visiting the Walking Club webpage.

Deciding where to exercise comes down to picking the place that offers you the greatest comfort, and the one that works best with your lifestyle.

